As substituted:

- 1. The changes suggested by the Auditors are incorporated.
- 2. The RADR team duties are narrowed to encompass only the Mandatory Compliance elements (fencing, signs and landscape buffers), rather than RADR being the reviewer for all site permit applications within the Renew Arlington Zoning Overlay area.
- 3. Allows the RADR team to, in their discretion, slightly enlarge their scope of review to encompass other issues related to the site design and the Mandatory Compliance element. This would avoid the duplicative process of RADR review and conventional 10-set civil plan review for small additional items.
- 4. Clarifies that the RADR team will give a “preliminary review” of the schematic designs at which point a determination will be made of whether the design will (a) require an Administrative Deviation (“AD”); (b) require conventional 10-set review due to complexity of the site (i.e. change in drainage) or (c) be approved for advancement to construction drawings.
- 5. If the design requires an AD, the RADR team will write a report for consideration by the Zoning Administrator. If the RADR team’s scope of review was slightly enlarged to encompass another issue, the RADR report to the Zoning Administrator will include this extra issue.
- 6. At the point that construction documents are ready for review, the RADR team will provide the “final review.”
- 7. Clarifies that an appeal of the AD’s decision must be accompanied by the filing fee and the cost of letter notification to property owners within 350 feet.
- 8. Clarifies that in an appeal of the AD’s decision the appellate procedure in Sec. 656.142 (the appellate procedure followed when a decision of the Planning Commission is appealed to Council).
- 9. Adds provision that if the appeal is successful at either the City Council level, or the Court, the filing fee and cost of notification are to be returned to the appellant by the agency or division collecting the fees. At City Council level, currently this is Legislative Services.
